

How do we get things back on track?

by Susan Lindsey

I guess we could start with the Police Department, for after all they are enforcing the law. If they stand tall and go about their business as they used to, we should stand behind them with our voices and demand that they be allowed to do their job.

And with all of the problems going on, we do the same in each case. The democrats do this and no one stops them. They need a taste of their own medicine to weaken them. And that's the key - - to weaken them, pressing ourselves ahead.

It's like a battle ... if you want to win ... you don't retreat ... you just send in another cavalcade & keep driving them back - - depleting their strength and gaining ground. We are not going against the law in this action, but simply protecting our rights ... protecting America, to gain our rights back - - for we don't want our lives and America to get worse; we don't want the alternative that the democrats are trying to drive us into which is Socialism, then Communism, etc., etc.

I stand for thousands of Americans when I say these words, so there's your backing.
